MARKET COMMENTARY

Last month we noted that concerns about the coronavirus had started to weigh on confidence. Early in February there were hopes that the respiratory virus could be contained, and after China's central bank stimulus US equities reached all-time highs. However a growing rate of infections beyond China remained a concern and those fears were realised when coronavirus outbreak clusters were picked up in Italy, Iran and South Korea. Markets responded with a concerted flight to safety as major US and European indices entered correction territory, the benchmark US 10 year bond yield hit historical lows and the VIX Index (a measure of volatility) tripled within a week. Against this backdrop Strategic returned -4.67%.

It is still too early to assess the scale of the impact that this virus will have on global economic growth but the OECD has suggested an escalation in the coronavirus outbreak could cut global economic growth in half and plunge several countries into recession this year. The sooner the virus is confidently contained, the quicker the recovery in economic activity will be, particularly given policy stimulus will no doubt be deployed to assist in that recovery.

The meaningful commitment to British Government bonds continued to prove its worth, adding value as uncertainty increased as did the allocation to gold, while hedge funds broadly maintained their value. Uncertain times present opportunities and the diversified structure of Strategic with the emphasis on quality and liquidity provides the necessary flexibility to benefit from an ever changing environment.

INVESTMENT THEMES

National Grid

National Grid owns and operates gas and electricity networks in the UK and in north-eastern USA where it also has generation capacity. Virtually all of its businesses are subject to price controls leading to a stable income stream. It is currently investing heavily in upgrades to the ageing power networks in the UK which should increase future returns and carry less investment risk than power generation. In the US, the progress on improving returns is showing considerable improvement with key rate cases (local regulatory reviews) underway. The dividend is expected to rise at least in line with inflation until 2021.
